Patrick –

In keeping with our commitments, we are continuing to review Mr. Levandowski's materials for responsive, non-privileged materials. Since I last emailed with you on Tuesday night, we have identified and prepared another batch of documents to produce to you. I expect to be able to upload that production to you by close of business today.

I appreciate your desire for expediency. As you can imagine, we are going through quite a lot of materials to make sure we capture everything that is responsive and non-privileged, in order to produce it to you.

We are happy to participate in a meet and confer if you have additional concerns. We have only spoken once before, and I understood the purpose of that meet-and-confer was for you to get an update on the timing of our production. We have since produced additional documents, and plan to make another production today.

I don't see the need to engage in unnecessary motion practice, particularly given the many other deadlines in this litigation, but, as always, we are happy to meet and confer to see if we assuage any concerns you may have.

Best regards,

Amy

Subject: RE: Levandowski Production

Amy—

In your message below, you committed that you would advise yesterday (May 10th) whether Mr. Levandowski had additional responsive, non-privileged documents to produce. Yet, we have heard nothing.

Unfortunately, this is part of Mr. Levandowski's continued pattern of discovery misconduct in this case. As you know, Mr. Levandowski was ordered to produce all responsive documents in advance of his deposition on April 14th. Mr.

Levandowski never sought relief from that order or modification of the production schedule. Instead, he simply violated Judge Alsup's order, and as a result, we did not receive Mr. Levandowski's first production until April 24th. When we met and conferred on April 27th, you agreed that Mr. Levandowski would make his final production by May 2nd so that it would be available to us in advance of the hearing on our motion for preliminary injunction. But, once again, we did not receive that production as promised. Instead, you delayed until May 9th to make a further production, and to date we are still unclear as to whether any further responsive documents remain outstanding.

Additionally, your message below that you are updating Mr. Levandowski's privilege log shows that he violated that aspect of the Court's order as well. Mr. Levandowski was required to submit a fulsome log, detailing all documents that were being withheld on the basis of the Fifth Amendment by April 19th. Again, Mr. Levandowski never sought or obtained relief from that Order.

Given these repeated failures to comply with the Court's Order we will bring a motion for an order to show cause. We have now met and conferred by phone and email several times without success and these issues are now ripe for consideration by the Court.

Thank you for sending the link. We used it to upload Mr. Levandowski's third production earlier today. I am working to confirm whether this completes Mr. Levandowski's production of responsive material. I will know by tomorrow, and will update you. If we determine there are any additional responsive, non-privileged documents to produce, we will get them to you by the end of the week. We are also updating our privilege log as necessary, and will provide the court with any revisions.

Amy,

I will send a link that you can use to upload the production under separate cover.

In the meantime, can you please explain the reason for the delay? We were expecting this production early last week. Also, does this complete Mr. Levandowski's production of responsive material, or do you expect to make further productions? If you expect to make further productions, when can we expect those? Finally, we assume you are logging additional privileged documents that you have uncovered since your April 19th submission to the Court. Will you be producing that log?

Thank you,

Amy/Miles,

I am writing in regards to the April 9th subpoena served on Anthony Levandowski. The last time we spoke, you advised that you were expecting to make at least one additional document production and that you were going to try to complete that production by last Tuesday (May 2nd). To date, we have received no additional document production, and we have heard nothing further about our outstanding requests for production. Please provide, today, an update on further document productions and an explanation for Mr. Levandowski's continued failure to comply with the subpoena. And also provide times you are available tomorrow to meet and confer. We reserve all rights, including seeking order from Judge Alsup to show cause.

Amy,

Jordan asked that I respond to your message below.

We understand from your message below that responsive, non-privileged documents remain unproduced. But, Mr. Levandowski was ordered to produce these documents at his deposition on Friday April 14th as the Court ordered on April 12th. His continued failure to comply with the subpoena and Court Order is highly prejudicial. Please advise when you are available to meet and confer today or tomorrow. When we confer, please be prepared to discuss the specific issues below:

- The process Mr. Levandowski and his counsel used to search for responsive documents, including the sources searched and any search terms used
- The volume of documents searched thus far
- The volume of documents remaining to be searched
- The approximate volume of documents you expect to produce
- The timeline for completing the production

We reserve all rights.

Jordan -

My apologies on the delay in the production getting to you. Apparently FedEx had a delivery issue (see tracking screen shot below the text of this email). We will plan to send you any future productions electronically in order to avoid delays going forward.

We are still in the process of reviewing Mr. Levandowski's documents. We plan to produce all additional documents that are responsive and not privileged under the Fifth Amendment or otherwise. We are moving as quickly as we possibly can in reviewing all potentially responsive documents.

Amy, we finally received the documents that were referenced in your emailed letter from April 19. As discussed below, we requested an electronic copy of these documents when we didn't receive them the day after your emailed letter. We did not hear back. In fact, we only received these documents this morning after I called your firm to request them a second time.

The Court ordered Mr. Levandowski to produce documents at his deposition, not after. Please explain Mr. Levandowski's violation of the Court's Order in this respect. As part of this explanation, please identify whether Mr. Levandowski intends to produce further documents, and if so when. Additionally, please explain the process that Mr. Levandowski and his counsel used to search for responsive documents, including the sources searched and any search terms used. Looking at LEV_000162, there appears to be a second document production number indicating upwards of 3.2 million pages of documents (3,272,370, to be exact). Is counsel for Mr. Levandowski in possession of millions of pages of documents from him and what percentage of those pages is Mr. Levandowski withholding under claims of privilege?

We reserve all rights regarding Mr. Levandowski's violations of the Court's Orders.
